MINER KILLED BY A CAVE-IN.

Struck by a Railway Train—First Alaska Execution—Supposed Deperado Caught.

Owing to the prevalence of winter, the public schools of California, Wash., have been closed by the city council, acting as a board of health.

Three men, who were arrested in the New Alameda mine, Cal., were killed in a cave Tuesday. It was estimated that a new excavation in California if it was safe, for a time, when a cave in occurred and he was buried alive. A large number of men went to work immediately, but the unfortunate miner was dead when they reached him.

Three men named Eldred, Spaulding and Hodge, who live in Sacramento, Cal., were going down a mountain Tuesday morning to a two-wheeled wagon, and while crossing the railroad track the wagon was struck by a freight train and completely wrecked. One of the occupants, Chester W. Eldred, a resident of the city, was killed. The other two, Spaulding and Hodge, were injured.

George Deason, a rancher living at Angleton, Lower California, was found dead in his cabin Sunday morning by Fred Richardson. Richardson was on his way from San Quentin to San Antonio, and he found the body of the rancher in the cabin. Medals

Two Gold Three Silver

FIVE—that's the number of Medals taken in November by Goodyear Welt Shoemaking System at Mechanics' Fair, Boston.

People said it was the most complete working exhibit of Modern Shoemaking ever made.

The World's Fair at Chicago gave us a half-dozen medals. They'll be delivered, so they tell us, about February 1, 1896.

A little later, but, added to those we have, they'll make it five.

Taking medals is "dead easy"; but, what is more to the purpose, the people are taking

Goodyear Welt Shoes

And wearing them. Faster, stronger, and wear longer than the hand-sewed kind; cost less.

Try a pair, but first be sure you get Goodyear Welt Shoes. Any honest shoe merchant has them in all grades, all styles, for both sexes.
